F&W Pro content will be distributed on FoodandWine.com, in FOOD & WINE magazine (starting with the July issue), on social media channels, major podcast platforms, and through real-world events.

F&W Pro will include:

- New Programming from F&W Pro at signature brand events like the FOOD & WINE Classic in Aspen, Colorado.

Reported by investigative journalist Tracie McMillan, Great Restaurants to Work For in 2019 honors 19 restaurants across the country that have strong workplace cultures. From financial transparency and maternity leave to health benefits and mental health counseling, these restaurants programs can be adopted by other businesses. One common denominator among the restaurants on the list: they have low turnover in a notoriously transitional labor market.

The 19 "Greatest Restaurants to Work For" winners hail from large coastal cities and small rural enclaves alike: AC Restaurants (Raleigh, NC), Ardent (Milwaukee, WI), Barrio Café (Phoenix, AZ), Mama J's (Richmond, VA), Bini's Kitchen (San Francisco, CA), Biscuit Lane (Nashville, TN), Cala (San Francisco, CA), Dinette (Pittsburgh, PA), Egg (Brooklyn, NY), Folk and The Farmer's Hand (Detroit, MI), Giant (Chicago, IL), Hell's Backbone Grill (Boulder, UT), Junebaby, Salare, Lucinda Grain Bar (Seattle, WA), Mei Mei (Boston, MA), Mondo and Rosedale (New Orleans, LA), Patachou

Restaurant Group (Indianapolis, IN), Thai Fresh (Austin, TX), Vimala's Curryblossom Café (Chapel Hill, NC), Zingerman's Community of Businesses (Ann Arbor, MI).

“Given the sweeping cultural changes in our country and especially within the food and beverage industry, we are launching F&W Pro as a much-needed resource,” said Lewis, who himself cooked in chef Jonathan Waxman's restaurants prior to his magazine media career. “F&W Pro provides our community of restaurateurs, chefs, winemakers, bartenders, and hoteliers with the inspiration, networking opportunities, and tools they need to grow professionally and personally. Long-term, we also expect Great Restaurants to Work For to spark a new conversation among discerning restaurant customers to think as much about the people serving their food as they do about where the ingredients come from.”

FOOD & WINE Publisher Tom Bair has secured the brand's first advertisers for F&W Pro, which includes Beringer Vineyards among others. “This platform is resonating with our ad partners who are looking to support and develop meaningful relationships with the trade community,” Bair said. “Advertisers recognize that doing the right thing is also good for business, and they're committed to helping this important cause.”

The brand will also take F&W Pro on the road this summer when Lewis will do a month-long residency in California. There, he'll engage with farmers, chefs, winemakers, restaurateurs, and hoteliers responsible for some of America's most amazing food and wine experiences and share their stories with the F&W Pro audience, while also capturing recipes and itineraries for readers who want to follow along and recreate them at home.
